City Attorney, F. H. Haggard, representing the city of Winchester, filed suit in circuit court Tuesday morning against V. W. and L. H. Bush, executors of V. W. Bush, deceased, to recover $250.00 with interest that the city has spent on building a sidewalk in front of the property on Winn avenue, that is a part of the estate of the deceased.

The petition in substance states that at a regular meeting of the city council, on August 7, 1908, a resolution was duly adopted requiring the defendants to reconstruct a sidewalk in front of said property and that on August 12 the defendants were notified to comply with the resolution and they failed to do so, and the city had the work done at a cost of $250.00 wherefore they pray for judgment against the defendants for the sum of $250 with interest from the 7th day of August until paid.

GOMPERS WILL GO TO JAIL IF FINED*Says Federation Must Not Settle It For Him.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 17.—President Samuel Gompers at the session of the convention of the American Federation of Labor declared that if he were found guilty and fined in the contempt proceedings against him at Washington, he would go to jail before he would pay his fine or before he would allow the federation to pay any fine for him. This statement was made by Mr. Gompers during discussion of the report of the committee on the treasurer's report. The committee recommended that immediately following the adjournment of the convention the executive committee shall take up the proposition of placing its funds where they may be removed from danger of attachment.

During a discussion of the Danbury hat case decision President Gompers said: "I am not in touch with the Democratic party; I am not a Democrat, and I am confident I never will be a Democrat. I owe allegiance to no party. I am a trade-unionist. May the trade-unionists always be right, but, whether right or wrong, I am with the trade-unionists. No man has denounced the Democratic party more than I. But when the Democratic party made our contentions its own, it would not only have been ingratitude but cowardice to desert them. If Bryan had been elected with the hosts of organized labor back of him it would have given spirit to human freedom."

Murder Mystery.

Millville, N. J., Nov. 17.—The body of an unidentified man, about 60 years of age, was found in a clump of bushes in this place, under circumstances leading to a suspicion of murder. The right half of the man's head had been blown off and at his side lay a shotgun with one barrel discharged. The clump of bushes in which the body was found is in a thickly-settled residential quarter, but no one has been found who heard the report of the gun. Owing to the disfigurement of the man's features identification is difficult.

Presbyterians Stand by President.

New York, Nov. 17.—An effort to pass a resolution indorsing the position taken by the Lutheran synodical conference in regard to President Roosevelt's statement that any refusal to vote for a candidate for high office because of his membership in the Roman Catholic church would be "unwarranted bigotry," on which the Lutheran church took issue with the president was defeated at the Presbyterian Ministers' association after an exciting discussion.

Marysville, O., Nov. 17.—John Trippe, marshal of North Lewisburg, was shot and seriously wounded by three yeggmen, whom he discovered at an early hour in the act of blowing the postoffice safe. Marshal Trippe lay helpless on the sidewalk several hours before being found by citizens. It is expected that he will recover.

OFFICIAL VOTE GIVES

To Report Their Election Returns.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 17.—So far official returns from 113 counties of the 119 of the State have been received by the Secretary of State.

The official returns from these 113 counties and the unofficial returns from the other six, give Bryan a majority of only 8,632 out of a total vote as between Bryan and Taft of about 470,000. The vote for the prohibition, socialist and other candidates will bring the total vote of the State up to nearly 485,000, which is over 40,000 more votes than were ever cast in the State before in any election.

The State Election Commission will meet next Monday, November 23, to canvass the returns and issue certificates to the successful electors and Congressmen.

CONFESSES TO MANY FRAUDS*Chicago Man Sentenced Four Hours
After Arrest—Used Clever Device.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Peter Van Vlissingen, a real estate dealer for several years classed among the first of Chicago's prosperous and reputable business men, confessed to having obtained through forged deeds and notes more than $700,000, and a few hours after his arrest, on his own urgent appeal to be punished, was sentenced to the penitentiary. The arrest, the indictment, the confession and the sentence were the work of less than four hours. Taken in the midst of business from his office desk, Van Vlissingen, a venerable looking man, appeared before the court and in tears confessed that for from 18 to 20 years he had been securing money through the sale of forged documents, and that though he had bought back many of these spurious instruments without detection, at least 25 people would lose an aggregate of more than $700,000 through the paper which he has not yet redeemed. In forging notes, he declared, he had perfected an unique device. This consisted of a plate glass desktop, so arranged that by an electric light thrown up from beneath he could readily trace from originals forged signatures onto worthless paper. Throughout his arrest and sentence the prisoner made no effort to defend himself, but only asked that his punishment be speedy. Asked if he had anything to say before sentence was imposed, Van Vlissingen, bowing his head, replied, "Only that I be given my punishment at once." His term in the penitentiary was fixed as indeterminate, from one to fourteen years.

Van Vlissingen, who is about 45 years old, was married Feb. 4, 1907, to Mrs. Jesse Roosevelt Blend, who was described at the time as a distant relative of President Roosevelt. The bride was a daughter of Wilton C. Blend. Van Vlissingen had been a bachelor, living at the Calumet club. He was known as being of a philanthropic disposition, giving special attention to the welfare of boys.

The specific charge which led up to the spectacular arrest of Van Vlissingen was made by two men who had bought forged mortgage notes. They are T. J. Lefens and William C. Seipp, who have offices in the same building as that occupied by Van Vlissingen. To the notes for $4,500 held by them were signed the names of Joseph and Bertha Grossman. As was customary, Van Vlissingen copied the forged papers from the originals, which he disposed of to other buyers. Lefens and Seipp said they first became suspicious of the note last Saturday.

Taft Will Make Own Cabinet.

Washington, Nov. 17.—When a report in circulation that National Committeeman William L. Ward of New York might be selected for a cabinet portfolio under Mr. Taft was called to the attention of the White House, Secretary Loeb's only comment was that Judge Taft has said that the newspapers might choose now the entire cabinet if they so desired, but that he would not decide that matter until February.

Sullivan Is Re-elected.

New York, Nov. 17.—James E. Sullivan was re-elected president of the Amateur Athletic union for his third term.

NEW RULER IS
MAN OF ACTION*Prince Chun Adopts Stringent Measures—Bound to Have Peace.

Peking, Nov. 17.—China is beginning to realize that the emperor and the dowager empress are dead. The Chinese have been so accustomed to look on the dowager as the one person dominating all, that the announcement of her death caused but little change in their unemotional natures and easy-going ways during the early hours of the ceremonies attending her passing, but now there has come a marked change. Prince Chun, the regent of the empire, in fear of increasing excitement and revolutionary movements, has taken a firm grip on affairs and has adopted stringent measures that will result in the maintenance of peace for a time at least.

Five thousand gendarmes guard the streets and other military forces are held in readiness for any eventuality. Every precaution was taken to prevent the recurrence of the revolutionary tactics of last April and May, which were marked by widespread incendiarism. The foreign legations are under guard, special detachments of Chinese troops keeping watch at the approaches, and in some cases the regular legation guard was augmented by reinforcements from other places.

There were many occurrences to add to the sinister aspect of affairs. Rumors were current for a time that the new dowager, Yehonala, and Yuman Shi Kai, the grand councillor and one of the most powerful men in the empire, had committed suicide. Though there was no truth in these reports, they went far toward disturbing the people and creating alarm amongst Chinese and foreigners alike, who realize how delicate the political balance is at the present moment.

Serious runs on banks occurred and four native banks closed. The crowds were wild with excitement and toward the close of the day the police intervened and drove them back. One foreign bank, the Yokohama Specie bank, suffered a big run on its Tientsin notes, but the British, Russian and German banks were not affected. It is probable that a number of other native banks will be closed, and it is believed that the government will step in in an endeavor to stop the financial panic among the poorer classes.

As yet the cause of death in the case of the emperor and dowager empress has not been made public. A number of lengthy reports have been written with reference to this, but they are unintelligible to the foreigners here, who have not yet recovered from the shock of the suspicion of foul play, which was widespread. There is no reasonable evidence, however, to show that death in either case was the result of anything other than natural causes. The emperor had been ailing for a long time and had been in feeble health during the latter half of his life. The dowager empress had carried burdens of state for many years, and in the last few months had shown signs of declining health.

The government entertains fears of the Keh Ning Tang reformers, who are reported to be assembling with a view to taking advantage of the present disturbed condition of the country. While matters have an appearance of tranquility, there are reports of disaffection among the adherents of half a dozen rival candidates for the throne, and to the minds of the foreigners the government itself is disaffected. It is contended by some that the eldest Pu, that is, Pu Lun, is the legitimate emperor, and that therefore the selection of Pu Yi was another of the dowager's illegal acts.

An imperial order was issued in the name of Dowager Empress Yehonala expelling all palace visitors, which means the clearing of the masses who assembled during the period their majesties were believed to be dying, and who have remained within and near the palace precincts ever since.

Ruef Demands Change of Venue.

San Francisco, Nov. 17.—In the trial of Abraham Ruef for alleged bribery, a motion was made on Ruef's behalf that the jury be dismissed. This was denied and Attorney Dozier filed an affidavit signed by Ruef asking for a change of venue to some court in another part of the state, as he was convinced that he could not obtain a fair trial in this court. Attorney Ach stated that if the motion for a change of venue was denied he would ask for a continuance of 30 days. Court adjourned in order to give the prosecution time to make counter affidavits.

WEEDS AND LOAFERS

Nuisances of Which Every Town Should Rid Itself.

TWO MODERN LIFE PLAGUES.

Practical Suggestions For Freeing Railway Stations of Loungers—How to Destroy Plants of Noxious Growth. Drummers and Tourists Can Help.

Weeds and loafers are rarely joined together to practical effect. But here is a seemingly hopeless suggestion to bring them together. A reader of a cattle breeder's journal who travels out of Louisville, Ky., sends the subjoined:

I write you with reference to a topic which to my idea is very important—that is, the weeds. My occupation is that of a traveling salesman, and it puts me in a position to see a great deal of what is doing on the farm, at the country store and at the railroad station. I have never got off at any station in my territory and not found men of different ages, from the boy in knee pants to the old man, hanging around the depot. Only recently my attention was attracted at the far end of the freight depot while waiting for my train by two boys who were getting something out of a box. When they saw me walking toward them they both ran between some freight cars and hid. Upon investigation I found that they were stealing oranges, and I could tell of many other happenings of similar nature that I have seen. Do you not think if you publish an article about weeds and the loafers hanging around the depots, learning nothing and doing nothing, that some railroad official might read the article and start a campaign against such a curse? Then probably the weeds will not be so prosperous.

Our correspondent has touched with his pen two plagues of modern life, says the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago. Possibly descent from Mother Eve permits us to thrill with pleasure at every opportunity to kill a snake, but we enjoy just as fully the privilege of killing a weed. A hatred of weeds is the beginning of agricultural knowledge. In seasons favorable to the growth of weeds the writer sometimes loses pleasure in his farm, so obtrusive and so aggravating is the presence of weeds. Certainly no farmer can read his title clear to honor in his calling unless he is the unceasing militant foe of weeds. And the trouble of it all is that many a farm, cleaned of weeds by unremitting toil, is fouled by the seeds of noxious plants that carry over from a lazy neighbor's uncultivated patch.

Here are the loafer and the weed. They are not confined wholly to the railway stations. Railways are the arteries of civilization. They are also the arch distributors of noxious weed seed. Weeds and rats are the concomitants of the civilization which the iron horse carries into pioneer sections. Most railway stations are weedy and most depots have their quota of loafers. Some of the eastern roads years ago planned a broad policy of improvement for their depots, and greenward, spouting fountains and shrubbery and flowers ornament the railway grounds and refresh the eyes of the weary traveler. And, moreover, many railways post conspicuous signs warning loafers off railway grounds and property. We would not want to say that the depot loafer and the weedy sidetrack are more common in the south than in the north. We have observed them from Maine to Texas and from Washington to Florida.

Since the problem is known to be general rather than local to any one section, its treatment must be on general lines. Many roads make an earnest effort to keep the weeds mowed along their right of way. But over vast stretches of country weeds run riot around railroad grounds and switches and stockyards, with little or no attempt to suppress the nuisance.

It is comparatively easy for the roads to keep loafers off their grounds. An imperative order to the station master to keep the premises free from loafers, followed by visits of an inspector, will quickly cure that evil, but it will not bring the muscle of the loafer in contact with the weeds. The conversion of the loafer into a useful productive member of the community is a problem which has commanded the earnest attention of political economists, sociologists and philanthropists, and yet there are thousands who in some way manage to eat bread without sweating. Such loafers could, indeed, redeem themselves somewhat in the estimation of their neighbors if they would set for themselves the commendable task of cutting the weeds in public places, including railway stations.

Here is a practical suggestion: Let traveling salesmen and tourists and farmers notify the railway passenger agents or division superintendents of grossly neglected weed patches along their lines, signing their names and giving places and dates accurately and in detail, and some beneficial results are apt to follow. In the same way complaints against dirty, ragged loafers around railway stations will certainly result in a sharp order to the depot master to keep his buildings and grounds free from such undesirable gentry. Much may be done with the railroad people if they are approached in the proper way.

Convicts For Outdoor Art Work.

Two hundred convicts will be employed in building the north and south state road near Oklahoma City, Okla., in which unusual attention will be paid to secure artistic landscape effects. The road will run along the Arkansas river and other streams, with particular attention to securing good views. Along the foot of the creek and Cherokee hills curves will be laid out for the purpose of showing the natural beauty of the country.

MEETING IS POSTPONED

Owing to Tragic Death of General Count Huelzen-Haeseler.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—Because of the tragic death of Gen. Count Huelzen-Haeseler, chief of the German military cabinet, the emperor telegraphed Chancellor Von Buelow that the audience arranged to take place at Kiel today aboard the battleship Deutscher land must be deferred. The emperor will return to Berlin on Tuesday when the meeting between him and the imperial chancellor, which the country awaits with intense feeling, is expected to occur.

Count Huelzen-Haeseler was laughing and talking after dinner at Donaueschingen when he suddenly fell, stricken with apoplexy, in the emperor's presence, and died almost immediately. He had held the position of imperial adjutant for 19 years, and was the emperor's constant companion.

Missing Art Student Located.

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 1.—Edna Clark, the young Alameda art student who has been missing from home and for whom the police of Oakland and San Francisco have been searching since Oct. 27, is safe and well in Chicago. A letter was received by the girl's mother, Anita Y. Mack, in this city, in which the writer says she is working in Chicago under an assumed name. The letter is emotional in tone and indicates that the girl left home owing to domestic misunderstandings.

Take Up Sugar Schedules.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The house committee on ways and means for considering the proposed readjustment of the tariff took up the schedule on sugar and molasses this morning. On Wednesday the schedule for agricultural products and provisions will be considered. Wood and wood manufactures will be taken up Friday, while Saturday will be devoted to pulp, papers and books.

TWO CLEVELAND STORES

Gutted by Fire and Adjoining Buildings Damaged by Water.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 1.—The five-story building occupied by the F. M. Kirby company's five and ten-cent store and the M. Phillipsborn company, ladies' suits and cloaks, located in the shopping district on Euclid avenue, was completely gutted by fire. The store occupied by J. Wagoner Sons, clothiers, was flooded by water and the costly decorations in the twelve-story bank building of the Guardian Trust company were damaged by smoke. The total loss will aggregate $200,000, practically covered by insurance. Two firemen were slightly injured.

Bryan Will Run For Senate.

New York, Nov. 1.—Several Nebraskans who have been here in the last few days let out a secret about William J. Bryan that has been kept hitherto. Mr. Bryan has decided to run for the United States senate for the seat occupied by Senator Burkett. The latter's term expires in two years, and, as the state is now in the hands of Mr. Bryan's friends, an active battle is to be started at once to retain control. The Republicans are aroused, and it is expected that when the federal patronage is distributed next year the administration will try to use the bulk of it to help in the effort to keep Mr. Bryan out of the upper house of congress.

Japan's Attitude.

Tokyo, Nov. 1.—The situation in China, in the event of the dowager empress' death, will not be made the occasion of any summary move on the part of Japan. The Japanese government will await an agreement of all the powers. It may be said that it is not Japan's intention, in the event of disorder or disorganization in Chinese territory, to take any step whatsoever until there has been a consultation of all the interested nations and until a course satisfactory to all has been determined upon.

OCEAN TO OCEAN RACE

Is Fizzle Owing to Adverse Atmospheric Conditions.

Los Angeles, Nov. 1.—Because of unusual atmospheric conditions, the transcontinental balloon race which was to have started from Los Angeles was a failure. Only the balloon America was sent up, and it was carried south and slightly west, directly toward the ocean, where it landed on the beach. The balloon United States profited by the example of its rival and did not ascend.

Fray Follows Kidnaping.

Erie, Pa., Nov. 1.—James Seldon, 52, who lived near Cambridge Springs, Pa., was stabbed to death as an incident to the kidnaping of his adopted child. Eugene Hall of this place is accused of making the fatal assault. The child is the daughter of Mrs. Hall by a former marriage. It is alleged Mrs. Hall took the child away while Mr. Hall restrained Mr. Seldon from interfering, the latter being stabbed when he was about to escape from the house and pursue the woman and child.

Want Racing Re-established.

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 1.—A movement is now on foot to repeal the celebrated Amis anti-racing bill and re-establish racing here. The Business Men's league at a meeting appointed a committee to draft a bill re-establishing racing under certain restrictions, to be presented before the coming legislature. A fight is expected in the legislature over the bill.

TAFT ANNOUNCES

That He Will Call Special Session Soon After Inauguration.

Washington, Nov. 1.—That a special session of the Sixty-first congress will be called soon after the 4th of March to take up the matter of tariff revision, became known positively when William H. Taft, president-elect, after spending the day at the White House as the guest of President Roosevelt, stated that he intended to call the special session to meet as soon after his inauguration as would be reasonable.

Judge Taft left for Cincinnati, O., where he had been summoned on matters of family importance, but which he assured the newspaper men who gathered at the White House were in no manner connected with politics. The call to Judge Taft to come to Cincinnati necessitated a hasty change of plans, so that instead of the president-elect, who was returning to Hot Springs, Va., from Brooklyn, N. Y., continuing to the Virginia resort, he left for his home over the Pennsylvania road several hours earlier.

Claim Death Is Established.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 1.—The establishment of the death of Mrs. Belle Guinness by the positive identification by Dr. I. P. Norton of her teeth, found in the ruins of the fire, supplemented by the identification of the rings she wore and other corroborative evidence offered by the state in the trial of Ray Lamphere, has practically removed one element from the case, which is now about ready to settle down to the presentation of proof that the defendant set fire to the Guinness house and thereby caused the death of the woman and her three children.

PROSPERITY ASSOCIATION

Says It Stopped President's Attacks on Large Corporations.

St. Louis, Nov. 1.—President F. C. Simmons of the National Prosperity association has made public a letter which he has sent to all the members of the association, announcing the completion of its work. The association, says the letter, prevented President Roosevelt from sending any more messages to congress that had the appearance of an attack on large corporations.

Among other things it says: "Perhaps the most important thing is the change in public sentiment towards railroads and large corporations—especially in the south and southwest. 'Muckrakers' have ceased to show their heads; demagogues have quit talking, and a very healthy state of mind prevails toward these industries, whereas previous to our work there was a vicious antagonism clearly evident among the masses of the people, most of whom held their views or opinions without giving the subject proper thought."

INMATES CHEER

As Fire Destroys Portion of Indiana Reformatory.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 1.—Five buildings of the Indiana state reformatory and nearly the entire plant of the Indiana Manufacturing company at Jeffersonville, Ind., across the Ohio river, were destroyed by fire. The loss will total about $250,000. There were no fatalities, the 1,300 inmates of the reformatory remaining locked in their cells, a portion of them sending cheer after cheer through the grated windows as they watched the work of the firemen.

Railroads Refuse to Obey.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 1.—At midnight the order issued by the Arkansas railroad commission prohibiting the trunk lines of the state from enforcing the three-cent passenger rate went into effect. None of the roads observed the order, and a hearing will be held in the near future at which they will be asked to show cause why the commission should not prosecute them.

Proposition Voted Down.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 1.—After an exciting discussion a proposition to exclude from future membership in the United Daughters of the Confederacy the northern women who are now admitted by virtue of marriage to descendants of Confederate veterans was voted down in the annual convention of the Daughters here.

Jealousy Leads to Shooting.

Dayton, O., Nov. 1.—Crazed with jealousy that had its origin in the belief that his wife was associating with other men, Austin Turner, a blacksmith, shot and mortally wounded his wife, Minnie, and then sent a bullet into his own brain. Both were removed in an unconscious condition to a hospital.

THE MEAT OF IT.

Rev. Dr. G. Brinley Morgan is dead at New Haven, Conn., as the result of being hit by an automobile.

Burglars secured $100 in a raid on B. & O. ticket office at Leetonia, O. The Aero Club of the United Kingdom has decided to present the Wright brothers with a gold medal. Nikolai Khomyaroff has been re-elected president of the Russian duma.

It is said that 88 Columbus (O.) residents, only six of whom are in want, have written begging letters to Mrs. Russell Sage.

Nick Veasey, colored, charged with the killing of a white planter, was hanged by a mob at Coldwater, Miss., who took him from officers as they were taking him to jail.

SOME NEW SALADS

TABLE DELICACIES THAT ARE POPULAR ABROAD.

Dressing for Them May Prove Novelties to American Mixers — A Favorite Dish with the Germans—Lobster, Cheese.

Many delicious salads made on the continent are unknown here, and the dressings for them will prove novel indeed to many American mixers of these delicacies. In Italy, for example, the favorite salad mixture is made of the minced white meat of roast chicken pounded in a mortar with soft boiled onions, cauliflower, beet root, celery and French beans.

This forms a puree, which is then carefully seasoned to taste with oil, vinegar, black pepper and salt. The salad ingredients, having been tossed in oil, are shining with it, being already in the salad bowl, the puree just described is poured over them.

Favorite German Salad.—In Germany two favorite salads are known as kartoffelsalat and the herringsalat. For the former boiled potatoes are sliced; then a dressing is made of the finest oil, vinegar, milk, pepper and salt, young leeks or onions minced fine being added to it. Half of this compound is poured over the potatoes in the bowl, which is then shaken vigorously until every bit of the potatoes is coated. The minced gherkins, olives and capers, with a very little sugar, are added to the other half of the dressing, and this in turn to the salad. To make the herring salad smoked herrings are soaked over night in milk and the next day the skin and bones are removed and the fish is cut into small strips. The requisite number of potatoes are then boiled in their skins, and when fairly soft the skins are taken off and the potatoes sliced. A little cold roast veal is chopped, with a few gherkins, beetroot, sour apples, a root of celery, a little minced ham and a few small onions, and these, with capers, salt and pepper, are added to the salad in the bowl. The dressing or sauce is then prepared.

Dutch Salad.—The Dutch prepare a very appetizing lobster and cheese salad. To make this chopped lettuce tossed in oil is combined with the baked lobster and a little vinegar and plenty of grated cheese is spread over the top.

Sulphur Preserves Fruit.

Peel peaches, cut in halves and remove seeds; arrange in wooden tub, leaving a hole in center for vessel that is to contain the sulphur. If four gallons of fruit is desired pare enough fruit for six gallons, as this allows for shrinkage. When fruit is in tub place sulphur, at the rate of one teaspoonful to each gallon of fruit used, in vessel in center of tub, ignite it, and cover whole tub closely for four hours. Remove fruit and place in stone jars; cover with a cloth. Fruit preserved in this way keeps fine all winter and tastes like fresh fruit. Apples, pears, or tomatoes are delicious prepared this way.

Poached Eggs and Macaroni.

Break some macaroni into inch pieces, rinse it well; put two ounces of butter into a fireproof dish, put the macaroni in and pour enough milk over it to cover it thoroughly, stirring it now and then. When it is nearly cooked take it out and put it into another dish, flavoring it well with pepper and salt, and pour over it half a pint of good brown gravy; then put it back in the oven again and leave it till cooked. When ready lay some poached eggs on it, sprinkle well with grated cheese and serve.

Quick But Good Lemon Pie.

Crust as for any lemon pie. Beat the yolks of four eggs with nine tablespoonfuls of sugar, add two teaspoonfuls melted butter, a half tumbler of milk and the grated rind and juice of three lemons. Pour in crust, with a sprinkle of flour over the top, and bake well. Beat the whites of the four eggs with four tablespoonfuls of sugar and spread on top and brown slightly. Very fine.

"Nothing Fussy" Pudding.

One cupful of sugar, one cupful of lukewarm water, whites of three eggs; dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatine in warm water; mix all ingredients together and beat until stiff; then add one can of grated pineapple and color with extract of rose. Serve with whipped cream.

Vinegar in Frosting.

A teaspoonful of vinegar beaten into boiled frosting when the flavoring is added will keep it from being brittle and breaking when cut, and it will be as moist in a week as the day it was made. Also a teaspoonful of vinegar added to each pint of home-made sirup will prevent it from candying.

Oyster Cocktail Sauce.

Into one tablespoonful of tomato catsup stir the following: One-half tablespoonful each horse radish, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, vinegar; one tablespoonful of lemon juice, quarter teaspoonful tabasco sauce or red pepper and salt. Serve cold.

A Furniture Duster.

For carved furniture there is no better duster than a new paint brush just large enough to work nicely into the crevices.

BLINDFOLDED

The Unwilling Hero

In Startling Adventure and Fascinating Mystery

A young man arrives in San Francisco at dusk. He knows but one person in all that great city—a cousin, a man of his own age. Within the hour the cousin is murdered and the stranger is plunged into the midst of an intricate conspiracy. Fate takes him by the hand. Luck points the way. Circumstances, blind, but relentless, rob him of his rightful name and cheat him out of his identity. They make him the champion of a cause he never heard of, the leader of conspirators he never saw and the lover of a girl he dreads to win. Cunningly attacked by unknown assailants and as cunningly guarded by unknown defenders, he is the storm center of a dramatic and relentless struggle.

Both the reader and the hero are "blindfolded." Both are quite as innocent of the past as they are ignorant of the future. The present, full of mystery and adventure, is all they can handle. But very gladly and together they fight against an enemy unseen, with friends unknown, and for stakes undreamed of.

Those qualities, whatever they are, that in mystery most fascinate us; that in adventure most charm us, are the qualities that dominate the pages of

Students and the Faculty

By PRESIDENT VAN HISE
of the University of Wisconsin.

The ideal relation between faculty and students should be that of comrades working together for a common purpose—older and younger comrades, it is true, each with their own privileges, but still comrades.

The mutual sentiments of students and faculty should be those of warm cordiality. I hope that within this university the relation of elder and younger comrades which already exists between many professors and students may become universal.

At various times there has been more or less antagonism between a considerable portion of the students and the faculty.

When one investigates the causes of this antagonism, he usually finds that it has grown up in connection with misunderstandings and differences of opinion upon matters which are accessory to the real purposes of the university, such as athletics and society affairs. As is often the case, lack of harmony with reference to minor things has led to partial estrangement in major things. The students are young men and women—young, therefore thoughtless and careless, frequently headstrong. They are young, and they have not yet been sobered by responsibility, and seasoned by experience; but they are generous, enthusiastic, likable and hopeful with the faith of youth. With few exceptions they intend to do the right thing if they know what the right thing is.

It is the duty of the faculty to point the way to the students with calm reasonableness. Never yet have I known a body of representative students who failed to give fair weight to the ideas presented to them if presented for their consideration with the appeal to do the thing that is for the best interests of themselves, the university and the state.

Be True to Your Own Ideals.

I would rather live on the most desolate crag—shivering, with all the warm wraps of falsehood stripped off—gazing after unbound truth than sit comfortably on more inhabited spots, where others are warm in a faith which is true to them, but which is false to me.—F. W. Robertson.

Potato Spontaneous in Chile.

The potato, which was already cultivated in America when the continent was discovered, is spontaneous in Chile. It was introduced to Europe in 1580 and 1585 by the Spaniards, and almost at the same time by the English, who brought it from Virginia, where it had appeared about 1550.

WHEN A BLESSING COMES IN DISGUISE

Advancing prices of life's necessities are making many men debate seriously this Autumn the question of ready-to-wear clothes versus the custom tailor.

No household can well economize on food, or rent, or light, or fuel, without hardship. But a man can cut off this tailor luxury not only without hardship to himself, but in very many instances with positive benefit to his appearance and peace.

Stein Bloch clothes are respected among clothing dealers as the representative ready-to-wear clothes—the clothes that give them a "leading" line, that fit properly and that have style.

They are made individually by tailors who have the touch of experience and the conscious superiority of the specialist held together by a great organization.

By wearing them you are giving yourself a luxury that your tailor never found for you.

FRANCIS J. HENEY.

The shooting of Francis J. Heney in San Francisco will probably have a good influence on the graft prosecutions there.

When the earthquake devastated that great California city, one Schmitz was mayor and Abraham Ruef now on trial was the political boss. Both the great parties had been discredited and the people had elected a so-called labor ticket.

The upheaval in business and the disorganization of society caused by the earthquake and fire were the opportunities for the grafters. Mayor Schmitz who rose to the occasion during the city's great trouble could not resist the temptations offered.

The city's streets were sold to the railroads. Previous to the fire, the street car company had tried in vain to be allowed to stretch overhead electric wires on the main streets. In the civic confusion after the catastrophe, Schmitz, Ruef and the supervisors sold a franchise for overhead wires. The telephone company was held up. The French restaurants paid tribute. Nothing was too small for the attention of the bootleggers.

They seemed firmly entrenched in power and became reckless and defiant. Finally, the city woke up. An honest district attorney was in office. The grand jury indicted scores. Many turned state's evidence. The citizens organized a league and contributed liberally to the prosecution.

Francis J. Heney had been conducting land prosecutions for the United States in Washington and Oregon. He had secured convictions against 33 men out of 34 tried, among them Senator Mitchell. The District Attorney was prevailed upon by the Citizens League to make Heney his assistant.

Schmitz, the mayor, was convicted of extortion and compelled to resign his office. Ruef pleaded guilty and testified against his fellow-grafters. But the Court of Appeals reversed the judgment against Schmitz and thus set aside Ruef's plea of guilty. In the meantime several so-called leading citizens who had paid the bribes were also convicted.

The reversal of the cases against the mayor and the boss put new heart into the bootleggers. In the second trial of Ruef, the jury disagreed and one man was arrested, pleaded guilty and confessed that he had been offered $10,000 to fix the jury. The third trial is now on. During its progress, one Haas, a saloonkeeper, who had been exposed on the second jury by Heney as an ex-convict and forced off the panel, shot Heney during a recess in the trial.

The latest information is that Heney will recover while his assailant has committed suicide in prison. The sympathy of all right-thinking men will go out to Heney in his misfortune. He has made an up-hill fight for civic righteousness. In spite of discouragements, of the oppositions of many leading citizens who were interested on the bootleg side, he has kept on in his course. Now his shooting has again awakened the civic pride of San Francisco. Some of the leading attorneys of that city have already volunteered to take his place in the prosecution.

If Kentucky had a few Heneyes among its county officials, we would have less of night riding. These midnight marauders and assassins would soon find it profitable to migrate or cease their nefarious work. But just as San Francisco submitted long and finally arose and destroyed the criminals so will our good citizens finally awake and see that such lawlessness is suppressed.

BALLOON DISAPPEARS

After Taking Zigzag Course For Hour After Flight Begins.

Los Angeles, Nov. 17.—The racing balloon United States, which ascended from Chutes park, was last reported two miles west of Covina, about 30 miles east of this city, and slowly approaching that place, while the America is out of the race, having landed about a mile from the Pacific ocean, near Hermosa. The United States, after ascending, traveled slowly in a southwesterly direction toward the point where the America had landed 12 hours before. Before an hour had passed, however, the direction of the flight changed, and the balloon sailed majestically toward the northeast. A little while later it again turned toward the southwest, and after hovering over this city for a short time, floated eastward and soon disappeared from view.

Disqualification Not Recognized.

New York, Nov. 17.—The Amateur Athletic union declined to recognize the disqualification of J. C. Carpenter by the Amateur Athletic association of Great Britain, which occurred after the Olympic games. The association declared that athletes registered with the union shall not be allowed to compete in international competitions unless the management of the events is approved by the Amateur Athletic union of America.

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 17.—A genuine blizzard is raging in the Tupper Lake region of the Adirondacks, and a foot of snow has been added to the covering of the mountains.

LETTERS PORTRAY METHODS

Employed by Mrs. Gunness to Alay Fears of Victim's Relatives.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 17.—Prosecutor Smith played another trump card when, with A. K. Heiglein of Aberdeen, S. D., on the stand, he offered in evidence and read to the jury copies of letters written by Mrs. Belle Gunness to Heiglein during March and April, this year, in which references to "that crazy Lamphere" are made. Likewise these letters, which are most interesting, portray the methods employed by the arch-murderess in allaying the suspicions of the relatives of persons she had murdered. Even with Andrew Heiglein lying dismembered in the Gunness farm burying ground, Mrs. Gunness asked his brother, Asie K. Heiglein, to come to Laporte to investigate, and to bring plenty of money with him. That she had designs on his life too is confidently believed by that man.

The state made excellent progress during the day, introducing evidence to show the motive for the crime and then, having established that, to lay the foundation for the real story of the fire.

Tank Steamer In Distress.

New York, Nov. 17.—A large tank steamer which was anchored, with heavy sea breaking over her, just south of the Delaware breakwater, and apparently in distress, was reported by the cable steamship Relay. As he was short of coal and a gale was blowing, Captain Oldham of the Relay said he did not attempt to ascertain the trouble. The tank steamer whistled several times and displayed signals which could not be read.

SEES NO DANGER TO SUGAR TRADE

Secretary Wright Discusses Tariff Revision.

TALKS BEFORE COMMITTEE

Favors Free Entry of Philippine Product For a Time, and Quotes Figures to Show That Home Market Can Not Be Overstocked For Fifty Years—Louisiana Cane Grower Describes Trust Methods to Control Prices as "Dannable."

Washington, Nov. 17.—The allegation that the so-called "sugar trust" controls the price paid the grower and the price charged the consumer of sugar, the secretary of war putting himself on record as a champion of free entry for Philippine sugar and the general "stand pat" attitude of the beet sugar growers who appeared before the ways and means committee of the house, were the features of the day's hearing on the revision of the tariff as it would affect sugar.

Secretary of War Luke G. Wright and General Clarence Edwards, chief of the insular bureau, were present at the hearing. Asked if he cared to make any remark, the former governor of the islands said:

"From what I have just heard, the principal objection by the beet sugar grower to the admission free of duty of Philippine sugar lies in the danger that their markets will be inundated by the Philippine article. It is not possible that the Philippine Islands could supply the actual increase in demand for sugar year by year in the United States. In that case there is no reason why the Philippine Islands should affect the market until the beet and cane sugar produced within the tariff wall increases 1,800,000 tons. Before the beet sugar industry is in the slightest danger it must increase from 440,000 tons annually to 1,200,000 tons, and from annual reports it would take 50 years to do this. I can't see how it would affect the domestic production if Philippine sugar were placed for a time on the free list."

Much information concerning the cost of producing the sugar, the profits derived, capital invested and methods of growing and refining was offered. Colonel D. D. Colcock, on behalf of the Louisiana cane sugar growers, said that the methods by which the "trust" names the price which it would pay the grower were unfair and "dannable." Henry T. Oxnard, F. R. Hathaway, C. N. Smith, F. T. Scholes, W. G. McCormick and W. H. Baird, representing the beet sugar manufacturers of the west asked that the present tariff be maintained, or if changed, that it be increased, claiming that the margin of profit on beet sugar was too small to permit of any competition with the foreign refiners.

E. F. Atkins, who is testifying before the commission today, is charged by F. R. Hathaway, representing the Michigan Sugar company, with having "not only prophesied, but threatened, a revolution in Cuba which would result in the annexation of Cuba and ultimate free trade, if the request for reduction is not granted."

ROCKEFELLER ABSENT

And Large Crowd at Oil Hearing Is Disappointed.

New York, Nov. 17.—In the expectation that John D. Rockefeller would be a witness in the suit now in progress by the government to dissolve the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, a considerable number of persons gathered at the custom house, where evidence is being taken, but they were disappointed, for Mr. Rockefeller did not appear. Subpoenas were issued for Mr. Rockefeller, John D. Archbold and James A. Moffett, calling for their appearance at the hearing. The testimony for the defense was of a technical nature and related to pipe line construction and operation.

Taxation Case Decided.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 17.—County Judge Arthur Peter has handed down an opinion in the long-standing litigation of the commonwealth against the Southern Pacific company, involving taxes on $300,000,000 worth of property. Judge Peter decides in the cases for taxes for 1907 and 1908 that the franchise tax assessed by the state board of valuation and assessment covers all the intangible property upon which the company must pay taxes in Kentucky, and that the county board of equalization can not go back of that and assess intangible property.

Shot Over Card Game.

Cannonsburg, Pa., Nov. 17.—With a 30-cent jackpot at stake in a poker game at South Cannonsburg, George Long accused Theodore Brock of stealing cards from the deck, became enraged and, exclaiming "You will steal cards, will you?" is alleged to have shot at Brock three times. One bullet entered Brock's abdomen and will probably cause his death. Long fled and officers have failed to locate him.

CATHOLIC PRELATES

Attend Reception in Their Honor at Auditorium Annex.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—A brilliant scene brought to a close the first day's business session of the first American Catholic missionary congress. Under a bower of flowers and waited upon by members of the Catholic Women's League of America, the distinguished prelates were given a reception at the Auditorium Annex. D. Falconio, apostolic delegate to the United States; Archbishop Quigley and scores of others prominent in the church, formed in a long line, while the visitors passed in front, greeting and kissing the hands of the visitors. The apostolic delegate wore the simple garb of the Franciscan monks, which appeared in striking contrast to the ornate robes of other church dignitaries who attended.

Today foreign missions, including those on Indian and African affairs, are being considered.

Business Is Purely Personal.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 17.—"My visit to Cincinnati is a matter of personal and family business. It has no relation to politics in any manner, but is of such a nature that no public interest attaches, which makes it inexpedient for me to discuss it in detail." This statement was the substance of what could be obtained from William H. Taft, president-elect of the United States, who suddenly changed his plans at the White House and came to Cincinnati instead of going to Hot Springs, where he had planned to go. Judge Taft will leave Cincinnati for Hot Springs, Va., at 9:10 this evening.

Naval Review Postponed.

Kobe, Nov. 17.—The review of the Japanese navy by the emperor scheduled to take place here today, and for which 30 battleships and numerous boats are assembled in the harbor, has been postponed.

DEMOCRATIC FUND SHORT, SAYS MACK

Chairman Promises to Make Up Deficiency Himself.

New York, Nov. 17.—The contributions of the Democratic national committee during the presidential campaign recently ended were not sufficient to meet the expenses of the campaign, according to Norman E. Mack, chairman of the committee. Mr. Mack said that he would make the deficit good out of his own pocket and that he would regard it as a personal obligation to see that every bill was paid. A statement of the receipts and expenditures of the committee will be filed with the secretary of state at Albany on Nov. 24. To a reporter who asked Mr. Mack who was going to pay for the maintenance of permanent Democratic headquarters, which are to be opened, soon either in Washington or New York, Mr. Mack said: "The Democratic party of the United States is going to pay for it. I have had offers from every state in the Union to contribute to a fund for the purpose."

ARREST TWO SUSPECTS

As Result of Daring Robbery of South Bend Postoffice.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17.—Developments in the $18,000 postoffice robbery Saturday night indicate that the authorities have secured evidence which is expected to lead to the capture of the perpetrators. It is reported two arrests already have been made. One of the men alleged to have been taken into custody is known to the police as "Detroit Whitey." The second man was arrested just as he was about to take a Lake Shore train out of the city.

Heney Improving; Bullet Removed.

San Francisco, Nov. 17.—Although several days have elapsed since Francis J. Heney was shot down in the courtroom by Morris Haas, who committed suicide in his cell at the county jail, the seven physicians in attendance upon Mr. Heney agreed that the interval has developed not a single unfavorable symptom resultant from the bullet wound in his head. The bullet fired by Haas at Mr. Heney was later removed from the muscles of the lower left maxillary, where it was located by means of the x-ray.

"THE FOOL" IS DR. PORTERS SUBJECT

There Were Thirty-two Additions at First Baptist Church Monday.

There were thirty-two additions at the First Baptist Church Monday night. J. W. Porter, of Lexington, preached again to a crowded house on "The Fool." The revival services will be held every night this week. Dr. Porter took for his text: "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee." Lk. 12:20.

Dr. Porter said in part: There is a vast distinction, between knowledge and wisdom. A man may be very knowing, and yet very unwise. Wisdom is knowledge rightly applied. The greatest fool in this world, is the one who says there is no God. To the fool, of the Old Testament, who said in his heart, that there was no God, God looked down from behind the everlasting stars, and said, "fool," and passed on. The fool is always a failure, and if not counted so here, will be hereafter.

The First Element

The first element of this man's folly was leaving God out of his calculations. In his scheme of life he found no place for God. God is the chief factor in the problem of life. He refers to "My fruits and my barns," just as though they were his forever. A man doeth not own anything that may be taken from him at the will of another. All that any man has, is a life-interest and at best he is a tenant at the will of God. The religion of this world glorifies self, the religion of Jesus Christ glorifies God. The religion of this world says, "Eat drink and be merry," the religion of Christ says, "Bear ye one another's burdens."

In Christ there is no "Me and mine," but you and yours. "I" died on Calvary, when Christ said, "I gave my life for thee."

Thought More of Body.

His folly consisted also in thinking more of his body, than he did of his soul. Many a parent will strive hard to educate their children, spending hours with their lessons, who have never spent an hour with the children in conversation concerning Christ. I would rather my children would die without a knowledge of the alphabet, than to have all knowledge, and die without Christ and without hope. We will spend time and effort trying to feed and clothe the body, knowing that the body will soon become the food for earthen worms. The bodies we now pamper, will soon be mingled with the dust of the lowest animals. Did you spend more time tonight in looking into the mirror, to prepare for this service, or in the Bible? Did you give more attention to the preparation of the body or soul? Some bodies that are sleek and fat, contain within them souls that are starving for the bread of life.

Likewise Foolish.

He was likewise foolish, because he believed that riches gave contentment. He said, "Soul take thy ease for thou hast much goods laid up for many years." He could not hush the hunger of the heart, with material things. Mortal things cannot satisfy an immortal longing. He said, "What shall I do," etc. Why did he not say, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," for his great goodness to him. There was the widow and the orphan at his door, and he might have found plenty to do in alleviating their wants and sufferings. When Vanderbilt came to die, he asked that his gardener would sing, "Come ye sinners poor and needy." The pleasures of this world are like the apples of Sodom, that turn to ashes on the lips.

Result of His Folly.

The result of his folly, was that he was cut off suddenly. The phantom of death, faced him in an unexpected moment, and said, "Come with me." He had much goods and fruits laid up, but he did not have the many years laid up. He is laid away in a copper-lined coffin, but he has nothing now, that anyone would envy. He is a bankrupt, for two worlds. Six feet of land tells the story of a godless life. He not only loses his life, but infinitely worse, he loses his soul. It was "night," when he died, a dread, starless night, with no coming morn. It may be that his family followed his footsteps. Many a child will not "go" to perdition, but will follow father or mother there. A child may meet us in perdition and say, "Your life brought me here." A godless grave, a Christless shroud, and everlasting punishment is the logical sequel of such a life. May God give us grace and wisdom to turn to him, before it is too late. We cannot live like Croesus and die like Christ.

BIG LUMBER CONCERN IS SOLD TO OHIOANS.

Standard Company Buys Up Roy Plant and Stock at Nicholasville.

NICHOLASVILLE, Ky., Nov. 17.—The plant and stock of the Roy Lumber Company were sold yesterday to the Standard Lumber Company of Cincinnati. The latter firm is composed of J. F. Heberger, who is president of the Standard Furniture Company of Cincinnati, and H. H. Meehlin, an experienced lumber man, of Winchester, O. The latter is president of the new firm, the former being secretary and treasurer. Possession has already been taken and improvements will likely be made in the way of adding a veneer plant and a bending plant. The present force of the company will not be changed, but A. F. Bryson will continue as superintendent and C. B. Bailey will have charge of the office.

Mr. Roy will not leave Nicholasville. He retains a small interest in the Standard Lumber Company, but will devote the greater part of his time and attention to the barytes business, as he is president of the Kentucky Barytes Company. He has lived here for the past eight years, and is one of the best known lumber men in the State, having been in that business at various places for fifteen or twenty years.

The Younger Set.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.
Author of "The Fighting Chance," Etc.

Copyright, 1907, by Robert W. Chambers.

But Ruthven was totally unprepared for the report brought him by a private agency to the effect that Mrs. Ruthven was apparently in perfect health, living in the country, maintaining a villa and staff of servants; that she might be seen driving a perfectly appointed Cossack sleigh any day with a groom on the rumble and a companion beside her; that she seemed to be perfectly sane, healthy in body and mind, comfortable, happy and enjoying life under the protection of a certain Captain Selwyn, who paid all her bills and at certain times was seen entering or leaving her house at Edgewater.

Excited, incredulous, but hoping for the worst, Ruthven had posted off to his attorneys. To them he naively confessed his desire to be rid of Alice. He reported her misconduct with Neergard—which he knew was a lie—her pretense of mental prostration, her disappearance and his last interview with Selwyn in the card room. He also gave a vivid description of that gentleman's disgusting behavior and his threats of violence during that interview.

To all of which his attorneys listened very attentively, bade him have no fear of his life, requested him to make several affidavits and leave the rest to them for the present.

Which he did, without hearing from them until Mr. Hallam telegraphed him to come to Edgewater if he had nothing better to do.

Mr. Hallam was a very busy, very sanguine, very impetuous young man, and when he met Ruthven at the Edgewater station he told him promptly that he had the best case on earth; that he, Hallam, was going to New York on the next train, now almost due, and that Ruthven had better drive over and see for himself how easily his wife maintained her household, for the Cossack sleigh, with its gray crimson tchug, had but just returned from the usual afternoon spin, and the young chateleine of Willow Villa was now on the snow covered lawn, romping with the coachman's huge white wolfhound. Ruthven drove to the villa.

There were clumps of evergreens about, tall cedars, a bit of bushy foreland and a stretch of snow. And across this open space of snow a young girl was moving, followed by a white wolfhound. Once she paused, hesitated, looked cautiously around her. Ruthven, hiding behind a bush, saw her thrust her arm into a low evergreen shrub and draw out a shining object that glittered like glass. Then she started toward the house again.

At first Ruthven thought she was his wife. Then he was not sure, and he cast his cigar away and followed, blinking forward among the evergreens. But the youthful, fur clad figure kept straight on to the veranda of the house, and Ruthven, curious and determined to find out whether it was Alice or not, left the semi-shelter of the evergreens and crossed the open space just as the woman's figure disappeared around an angle of the veranda.

Vexed, determined not to return without some definite discovery, Ruthven stepped upon the veranda. Just around the angle of the porch he heard a door opening, and he hurried forward, impatient and absolutely unafraid, anxious to get one good look at his wife and be off.

But when he turned the angle of the porch there was no one there. Only an open door confronted him, with a big, wild eyed wolfhound standing in the doorway looking steadily up at him.

Ruthven glanced somewhat dubiously at the dog; then as the animal made no offensive movement he craned his fleshy neck striving to see inside the house.

He did see—nothing very much, only the same young girl, still in her furs, emerging from an inner room, her arms full of dolls.

In his eagerness to see more Ruthven pushed past the great white dog, who withdrew his head disdainfully from the unceremonious contact, but quietly followed Ruthven into the house, standing beside him, watching him out of great, limpid, deerlike eyes.

But Ruthven no longer heeded the dog. His amused and slightly sneering gaze was fastened on the girl in furs who had entered what appeared to be a living room to the right and now, down on her knees beside a couch, smiling and talking confidentially and quite happily to herself, was placing her dolls against the wall.

Then the great white dog growled very low, and the girl in the fur jacket looked around and up quickly.

Alice! He realized it as she caught his pale eyes fixed on her, and she stared, sprang to her feet, still staring. Then into her eyes leaped terror, the living horror of recognition distorting her face. And as she saw he meant to speak she recoiled, shrinking away, murmuring in her fright like a hunted thing. The strange doll in her hand glittered. It was a revolver wrapped in a red rag.

"What's the matter?" he stammered, stepping forward, fearful of the weapon she clutched.

But at the sound of his voice she screamed, crept back closer against the wall, screamed again, pushing the shining muzzle of the weapon deep into her fur jacket above her breast.

"For God's sake," he gasped, "don't fire—don't!"

She closed both eyes and pulled the trigger. Something knocked her flat against the wall, but she heard no sound of a report, and she pulled the trigger again and felt another blow.

The second blow must have knocked her down, for she found herself rising to her knees, reaching for the table to aid her. But her hand was all red and slippery. She looked at it stupidly, fell forward, rose again, with the acrid smell of smoke choking her and her pretty fur jacket all soaked with the warm, wet stuff which now stained both hands.

Then she got to her knees once more, groped in the rushing darkness and swayed forward, falling loosely and flat. And this time she did not try to rise.

It was her way. It had always been her way out of trouble—the quickest, easiest escape from what she did not choose to endure.

As for the man, they finally contrived to drag the dog from him and lift him to the couch, where he lay twitching among the dolls for awhile, then stopped twitching.

Later in the night men came with lanterns, who carried him away. A doctor said that there was the usual chance for partial recovery. But it was the last excitement he could ever venture to indulge in.

Chapter 29

INE days is the period of time allotted the human mind in which to wonder at anything. In New York the limit is much less. No tragedy can hold the boards as long as that where the bill must be renewed three times a day to hold even the passing attention of those who themselves are eternal understudies in the continuous metropolitan performance.

As for Selwyn, a few people noticed his presence at the funeral. But even that episode was forgotten before he left the city six hours later under an invitation from Washington which admitted of no delay on the score of private business or of personal perplexity, for the summons was peremptory and his obedience so immediate that a telegram to Austin comprised and concluded the entire ceremony of his leave taking.

Later he wrote a great many letters to Eileen Erroll, not one of which he ever sent. But the formality of his silence was no mystery to her, and her response was silence as profound as the stillness in her soul. But deep into her young heart something new had been born.

Government satisfied. Appropriation certain next session. Am on my way to New York.

Austin, in his house, which was now dismantled for the summer, telephoned Nina at Silverside that he had been detained and might not be able to grace the festivities which were to consist of a neighborhood dinner to the younger set in honor of Mrs. Gerald. But he said nothing about Selwyn, and Nina did not suspect that her brother's arrival in New York had anything to do with Austin's detention.

As Selwyn came leisurely up the front steps Austin, awaiting him feverishly, hastened to smooth the florid jockey mask over his features and walked into the room, big hand extended, large, bantering voice undisturbed by the tremor of a welcome which filled his heart and came near filling his eyes.

"So you've stuck the poor old government at last, have you? Took 'em all in—forts, fleet and the marine cavalry?"

"Sure thing," said Selwyn, laughing in the crushing grasp of the big fist. "How are you, Austin? Everybody's in the country, I suppose," glancing around at the linen shrouded furniture. "How is Nina? And the kids? Good business? And Eileen?"

"She's all right," said Austin. "Gad! She's really a superb specimen this summer. Where's your luggage? Oh, is it all here? Enough, I mean, for us to catch a train for Silverside this afternoon?"

"Has Nina any room for me?" asked Selwyn.

"Room! Certainly! I didn't tell her you were coming, because if you hadn't the kids would have been horribly disappointed. She and Eileen are giving a shindy for Gladys—that's Gerald's new acquisition, you know. So if you don't mind butting into a baby show we'll run down. It's only the younger bunch from Hitherwood House and Brookminster. What do you say, Phil?"

Selwyn said that he would go, hesitating before consenting. A curious feeling of age and grayness had suddenly come over him, a hint of fatigue, of consciousness that much of life lay behind him.

So Austin went to the telephone and called up his house at Silverside, saying that he'd be down that evening with a guest.

Nina got the message just as she had arranged her tables, but woman is born to sorrow and helpless to all the unlooked for idiocies of man.

"Dear," she said to Eileen, the tears of uxorial vexation drying unshed in her pretty eyes. "Austin has thought fit to seize upon this moment to bring a man down to dinner. So if you are dressed would you kindly see that the tables are rearranged and then telephone somebody to fill in—two girls, you know? The oldest Craig girl might do for one. Beg her mother to let her come."

"Whom is Austin bringing?" Eileen asked.

"He didn't say. Can't you think of a second girl to get? Isn't it vexing? Of course there's nobody left—nobody ever fills in in the country. Do you know, I'll be driven into letting Drina sit up with us—for sheer lack of material. I suppose the little inn will have a fit if I suggest it and probably perish of indigestion tomorrow."

Eileen laughed. "Oh, Nina, do let Drina come this once! It can't hurt her."

And so it happened that, among the little through which clustered around the dining room at Silverside, Drina, in ecstasy, curly hair just above the nape of her slim white neck and cheeks like pink fire, sat between Boots and a vacant chair reserved for her tardy father.

For Nina had waited as long as she dared. Then Boots had been summoned to take in Drina and the youthful Craig girl, and as there were to have been six at a table, at that particular table sat Boots decorously facing Eileen, with the two children on either hand and two empty chairs flanking Eileen.

At dinner Drina and the younger Craig maiden also appeared to be bent upon self destruction, and Boots' eyes opened wider and wider in sheer amazement at the capacity of woman in embryo for rations sufficient to maintain a small garrison.

"There'll be a couple of reports," he said to himself, with a shudder, "like Selwyn's chaotic, and then there'll be no more Drina and Daisy. Hello!" He broke off, astonished. "Well, upon my word of words! Phil Selwyn, or I'm a broker!"

"Phil!" exclaimed Nina. "Oh, Austin, and you never told us!"

"Train was late, as usual," observed Austin. "Philip and I don't mean to butt into this very grand function—Hello, Gerald! Hello, Gladys! Where's our obscure corner below the salt, Nina? Oh, over there!"

Selwyn had already caught sight of the table destined for him. A deeper color crept across his bronzed face as he stepped forward, and his firm hand closed over the slim hand offered.

For a moment neither spoke. She could not. He dared not.

Then Drina caught his hands, and Eileen's loosened in his clasp and fell away as the child said distinctly: "I'll kiss you after dinner. It can't be done here, can it, Eileen?"

Selwyn, beside Eileen, had ventured on the formalities, his voice unsteady and not yet his own.

Her loveliness had been a memory. He had supposed he realized it to himself, but the superb fresh beauty of the girl dazzled him. There was a strange new radiance, a living brightness, to her that seemed almost unreal. Exquisitely unreal her voice, too, and the slightly bent head, crowned with the splendor of her hair, and the slowly raised eyes, two deep blue miracles tinged with the hues of paradise.

"Are you remaining to smoke?" asked Eileen as Selwyn took her to the doorway after dinner. "Because if you are not I'll wait for you."

"On the lawn out there—farther out, in the starlight," he whispered, his voice broke, "my darling!" She bent her head, passing slowly before him, turned, looked back, her answer in her eyes, her lips, in every limb, every line and contour of her, as she stood a moment looking back.

Austin and Boots were talking volubly when he returned to the tables now veiled in a fine haze of aromatic smoke. Gerald stuck close to him, happy, excited, shy by turns. Others came up on every side—young, frank, confident fellows, nice in bearing, of good speech and manner.

And outside waited their pretty partners of the younger set, gossiping in ball, on stairs and veranda in garrulous banter, all filmy silks and laces and bright eyed expectancy.

The long windows were open to the veranda. Selwyn, with his arm through Gerald's, walked to the railing and looked out across the fragrant starlit waste. And very far away they heard the sea intoning the hymn of the four winds.

Then the elder man withdrew his arm and stood apart for awhile. A little later he descended to the lawn, crossed it and walked straight out into the waste.

The song of the sea was rising now. In the strange little forest below, deep among the trees, elfin lights broke out across the unseen Briar Water, then vanished. He halted to listen. He looked long and steadily into the darkness around him. Suddenly he saw her—a pale blur in the dusk.

"Eileen?"

"Is it you, Philip?"

She stood waiting as he came up through the purple gloom of the moonland, the stars' brilliancy silencing her—waiting—yielding in pallid silence to his arms, crushed in them, looking into his eyes, dumb, wordless.

Then slowly the pale sacrament changed as the wild rose tint crept into her face. Her arms clung to his shoulders, higher, tightened around his neck. And from her lips she gave into his keeping soul and body, guiltless as God gave it, to have and to hold beyond such incidents as death and the eternity that no man clings to save in the arms of such as she.

THE END.

Majority and Plurality.

In politics the plurality is the greatest of more than two numbers and is also the excess of the highest number of votes cast for any one candidate over the next highest number. When a candidate receives out of 10,000 votes cast 4,000 and two other candidates receive respectively 3,500 and 2,500 the first is elected by a plurality though he has received less than a majority of the whole vote, and he is said to have a plurality of 500 votes. If the numbers are 6,000, 3,000 and 1,000, the majority is 2,000 and the plurality is 3,000. A majority, therefore, must be more than half the entire vote cast, and a candidate's majority is, then, the difference between the number of votes he received and the combined number of votes cast for all other candidates; his plurality is the difference between his own number and the number received by the candidate nearest to him. Oftentimes a candidate receives a plurality, but not a majority. Unless there is a tie there is always a plurality. — Pathfinder.

Why Sailors Don't Swim.

"You think it's strange, do you," said the sailor, "that us shellbacks can hardly ever swim?"

"Strange and almost criminal," replied the druggist firmly. "Sailors who can't swim—I don't understand it at all."

The sailor frowned. "Supposing," he said, "on a cold black night you found yourself in the sea, not a spar left of the wreck, every shipmate drowned, nothing anywhere but the cold, the blackness, the bitter water. In them conditions," he said, "what would you rather do, swim and swim and swim in agony till you died or sink right down and die at wunst?"

"I think I'd rather die at once," said the druggist, shuddering.

"So sailors think," said the other, "and it's to spare themselves possible long hours of agony that they like not to learn to swim. And they encourage their sons not to learn, too, if there's any likelihood of the lads' follerin' the sea." — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Moral of Playing Cards.

Playing cards have had their moral side, it may surprise you to know. At the Blenheim club in London, lecturing on the subject of playing cards from the point of view of the collector, Mr. Alfred Whitman said that the most valuable packs were those that taught Biblical history or inculcated moral lessons. In Italy in the eighteenth century it was customary to issue packs of cards with Old Testament scenes engraved upon them. In Germany of the same period playing cards with fables to which morals were attached were customary. French playing cards of the time of Louis XIV were used to teach geography and history, while in the England of Elizabeth and the Stuart playing cards were used as political pamphlets. Most valuable were cards issued in France at the time of the French revolution, when figures of Genius, Liberty and Equality took the place of kings, queens and knaves. — London Saturday Review.

He Has Two Signatures.

There is one New York business man who is reasonably proof against the forger, as he has two signatures and the forger must first get hold of one of his bank checks to get any action. Seeing the signature on a letter or hotel register would do the forger no good. The bank would not recognize it. "I don't particularly fear the forger," the business man admitted, "but my two signatures make me feel safer just the same. I am surprised that everybody doesn't hit on the same plan. It's very easy after you get the knack of signing your name two separate and distinct ways." — New York Globe.

Hard to Do Without Pockets.

"The most annoying thing in navy life for a recruit is the absence of side pockets in the uniform trousers," said a yeoman at the navy recruiting station. "The average man doesn't realize how strong is the custom of thrusting his hands in his trousers pockets until he dons a pair without pockets. I've worn the navy uniform four years now, and I frequently find myself trying to put my hands in my pockets."

Shouldn't Worry.
Worry brings worries, and the sensible girl should learn to avoid them in her home, and perhaps her business life. What good lies in wearing a long face and always thinking the worst will happen? "I'm so worried," is the cry of many people; they forget that they must worry others as well as themselves.

TRIALS FOR ANIMALS

Curious Custom That Prevailed
In the Middle Ages.

PROSECUTED FOR HOMICIDE.

A Bull That Killed a Man Found Guilty, Sentenced to Death and Executed—Fate of a Cock That Was Charged With Having Laid an Egg

Among the many curious customs of the past is recorded a singular feature of the jurisprudence of the middle ages, when animals were indicted for injuries inflicted upon human beings. The custom was not abolished in France until the middle of the eighteenth century, and the French court records show that at least ninety-two trials took place between 1120 and 1741.

There is some Biblical precedent for these proceedings, for in the twenty-first chapter of Exodus one finds, "If an ox gore a man or a woman that they die, then the ox shall be stoned and his flesh shall not be eaten."

An early instance of the custom was in 1314, when a bull escaped from a farmyard in a village in France in the duchy of Valois and gored a man to death. The Count of Valois, being informed of the case, directed that the bull be captured and formally prosecuted for homicide. This was done, and evidence was given by persons who had seen the man attacked and killed. The bull was thereupon sentenced to suffer death, which was inflicted by strangulation, after which the carcass was suspended from a tree by the hind legs.

In 1386 a sow was executed in the square of Falaise for having caused the death of a child, and three years later a horse was condemned to death at Dijon for having killed a man. In 1457 a sow and her six young ones were tried at Lavegny on the charge of having killed and partially eaten a child. The sow was convicted and condemned to death, but the little ones were acquitted on the ground of their extreme youth and inexperience, the bad example of their mother and the absence of direct evidence of their having partaken of the atrocious feast.

One of the most grotesque of these trials took place in Basel when a farmyard cock was tried on the absurd charge of having laid an egg. It was contended in support of the prosecution that eggs laid by cocks were of inestimable worth for use in certain magical preparations, that a sorcerer would rather possess a cock's egg than the elixir of life and that Satan employed witches to hatch such eggs, from which proceeded winged serpent-most dangerous to mankind.

The prisoner's advocate admitted the facts of the case, but contended that no evil intention had been proved and that no evil result had taken place. Besides, the laying of an egg was an involuntary act and as such was not punishable by law; also there was no record of the devil having made a compact with an animal. The public prosecutor stated in reply that the evil one sometimes entered into animals, as in the case of the swine which drowned themselves in the sea of Galilee.

So the poor creature was convicted not as a cock, but as a sorcerer or perhaps the devil in the form of a cock, whereupon the bird and the egg that was attributed to it were solemnly burned at the stake.

Even stranger than this were the proceedings instituted in 1445 and 1487 against certain beetles which had made havoc in the vineyards of St. Julian. Advocates were named on behalf of the vine growers and the beetles respectively, but by a singular coincidence the insects disappeared when cited to answer for the mischief they had done, and the proceedings were in consequence abandoned.

That was in 1445. In 1487, however, they reappeared, and a complaint was thereupon addressed to the vicar general of the bishop of Maurienne who named a judge and also an advocate to represent the beetles. A compromise was finally agreed upon, wherein the vine growers consented to cede the beetles certain fields to their exclusive use. Some time after the beetles, through their attorney, protested that there was a right of way through these fields which would be to their detriment. Consequently the case had to begin again, but how it ended is not known, owing to the mutilation of the records.—F. C. Evans in New York Post.

Lotteries.

The first scheme for the distribution of prizes by chance in modern times is generally attributed to one Benedetto Gentile of Genoa, who established his lottery in 1620. The proper lottery, in which each person takes part by means of tickets costing each a fixed sum of money, had its origin in more ancient times, being known even in the middle ages. Such a lottery was established at Florence as early as 1530.—New York American.

Ladylike.

"You say you acted like a perfect lady throughout?" "Sure, yer honor. When he tips his hat to me an' me not knowin' him, I ups with a rock an' caves in his face."—Houston Post.

Action repeated becomes habit. Habit long continued becomes second nature. We are today what we were accustomed to do yesterday and the day before.—Lyman Abbott.

Evil comes by talking of it.—Irish Proverb.

NIPPING A CAREER.

Young W. S. Gilbert's Brief Interview With Charles Kean.

At the early age of fifteen, according to the author of a biography of Sir W. S. Gilbert, the future dramatist showed his theatrical bias to his own undoing.

Enraptured with a splendid performance of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Princess theater, then under the management of Charles Kean, young Gilbert packed up a few clothes in a hand bag and actually succeeded in making an entrance to the theater with a view to going on the stage. Greatly elated at receiving the message that Kean would see him in his room, the boy lost courage when he was face to face with the great actor. "So you would like to go on the stage?" said Kean.

"Yes, sir," replied Master Gilbert, trembling in every limb.

"What's your name?"

The boy's imagination failed him at a critical moment in his life. "Gilbert," he faltered, seeking refuge in the truth.

"Gilbert, Gilbert?" reiterated Kean, with a sharp glance at the embarrassed boy. "Are you the son of my old friend, William Gilbert?"

"Yes."

Kean turned to an attendant. "See this young gentleman home," said he.

THE UPPER AIR.

Danger in the Chill That Comes With the Fall of Night.

Few people who visit Denver realize that it is located only a few feet short of a mile above the sea level. At such altitudes the climate is always treacherous. The midday sun may be broiling hot, but after dark the air is soon chilled and one is liable to contract a cold.

Several of the Spanish cities stand upon the crests of tall hills, where such climatic changes occur after nightfall. When, as a boy at the grand opera, I saw Spaniards in "Carmen" or "The Barber of Seville" toss their long cloaks or capes about their faces I assumed that the act was intended to disguise them—to hide their faces. Nothing of the sort. The Spaniard, like the Italian of the Alpine regions, always covers his mouth after sundown to minimize danger to his lungs from the night air.

Curiously the women haven't any fear of the chill that follows the darkness. They may be seen in low cut bodices at all hours of the evening in the cafes, at balls and on the streets. The men, however, are in terror of cold night winds. Pneumonia and tuberculosis carry off a great many victims in Spain and northern Italy.—Julius Chambers in Brooklyn Eagle.

Not a Dead One.

The hour was long past midnight, but the young girl had not yet retired. Moaning, wringing her hands, she walked the room distractedly.

"Oh, father!"

A stately, white haired figure in evening dress had entered.

"Father, speak. Has Winterbottom Hance killed himself? I heard a commotion without at midnight—a crack as of a revolver, a fall as of a heavy body.

I refused Winterbottom early in the evening, and as he staggered from the room, despair writ large upon his pale brow, he swore wildly to take his own life."

The old man's eye gleamed as with some secret joy.

"Refused him, did you?" he chucked. "Refused Winterbottom, eh? Well, I'm glad you did. He's just cleaned me out of $7 in a poker game at the club."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Legend of Moses.

The story of the cause of Moses' slowness of speech is given in the Talmud and runs as follows: Pharaoh was one day sitting on his throne with Moses on his lap when the child took off the king's crown and put it on his own head. The "wise men" tried to persuade the king that this was treason, for which the child ought to be put to death, but Jethro replied: "It is the act of a child who knows no better. Let two plates be set before him, one containing gold and the other red-hot coals, and you will find he will prefer the latter to the former." The experiment being made, the child snatched up one of the live coals, put it into its mouth and burned its tongue so severely that it was ever after "heavy and slow of speech."—New York American.

Bee Economics.

The organization of bee life is a fascinating study. The workers in a beehive may be divided, says the University Correspondent, into (1) harvesters, who bring in honey and pollen from flowers, wax from buds of pines and poplars, water to mix with pollen and honey to make the paste food for the larvae; (2) scavengers, who in early morning carry out debris, including dead, sick or injured workers; (3) ventilators, who stand erect and keep their wings in continual movement in order to ventilate the hive; (4) guards, who defend the hive from wasps, robber bees and other enemies.

IMPORTANT INSURANCE DEAL ABOUT CLOSED

Inter-Southern and Provident Life Insurance Companies May Merge

The Louisville Times of Monday reports that a deal is on by which the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company, of Louisville, will take over the Provident Life Assurance Society, with its business of $70,000,000 and assets of $10,000,000. Negotiations are under way with the stockholders in New York to carry out the original proposition.

The Inter-Southern Company has the written contracts of a number of local bankers and business men to buy the $100,000 capital stock of the Provident Company. Its stock sells at a premium of from three to four to one, and General Manager Berton B. Bales says that it is at present hypothesized for $40,000,000. With the consummation of this deal the Inter-Southern will become, it is claimed, the biggest company south of the Ohio river.

Floyd Day, who is stated to be one of the two individuals who own the majority control of stock in the Provident Company, is now in New York to bring the negotiations to a successful issue. Mr. Day is also a stockholder of the Inter-Southern, and is stated that Inter-Southern stockholders practically control the Provident Company now. Arthur Langham represents the Provident Company on the Inter-Southern board.

About twenty-five thousand dollar-Southern Company. Among the owned in this city, and about forty thousand in Eastern Kentucky.

Mr. Harry Strother of this city was one of the promoters of the Inter-Southern Company. Among the stockholders here are J. W. Strother, H. T. Strother, D. T. Mallack, R. B. Franklin, Floyd Day, Dr. J. N. Rankin, P. J. Drake and J. B. Ford.

"I am not seeking the office of Senator. I do not think that great office ought to be given to any one because he wants it; but if the Legislature of New York representing the people of the State feel that I can render useful service to the State and the country in the Senate and call upon me to render that service, I shall respond to their call and accept the office."

SALOON CASES ARE DISMISSED

Prosecution Fails to Change Decision of Court Given in the First Trial.

Another large crowd was present in Police court Monday night to hear the remainder of the cases against the saloon men who were charged with selling liquor to minors tried. These were the cases that were brought through Prof. H. K. Taylor, President of Kentucky Wesleyan College who had a young man by the name of Green who is a minor and a student at the college to purchase the liquor and give it to him for the purpose of indicting the saloon men and showing them up as selling to minors.

The cases were originally set for trial last Monday night but only one of them were tried, that against J. W. Porter. At this trial, Green testified that he did not buy the liquor from Mr. Porter who is the proprietor of the place and could not identify either of his bartenders as the one who sold to him. The question then came up as to whether the principal was responsible for the acts of his agents. And the court held that he was not; as the boy had testified positively that he did not buy from Mr. Porter, the case was dismissed.

Expressed Surprise.

The attorneys for the prosecution expressed great surprise at the court's decision and asked for a week's time to look up some authority that they thought was contrary to the court's decision before taking up the other cases and this was granted.

When the cases were called Monday night, the attorney for the prosecution asked for a continuance, saying that Professor Taylor was not present and that Professor Taylor had told him that Green was out of town. This the attorneys for the defense objected to and the court who had information that Green was in town, sent an officer to the Navarro Cafe and he found Green playing pool. He was brought to court and the trials proceeded.

Failed to Show Authority.

The attorneys for the prosecution failed to show any authority that was contrary to the court's decision in the other cases and the cases were all dismissed. The following are the saloon men who were charged with the offense that were dismissed, John F. Nunan, Jones & Black, Jesse Spencer, W. W. George, W. G. Rice and Bob Proffitt.

OLDEST KNOWN MASON IS CLARK COUNTY MAN

Mr. Lancelot Graves Burrius Tells Some Interesting Facts of Early Days.

Mr. Lancelot Graves Burrius, of East Buffalo, New York, gave this office a pleasant call Tuesday morning.

Mr. Burrius was born about two miles south of this city, 79 years ago. His grandfather, Thomas Burrius, was among the early settlers in this county. In early life, Mr. Burrius engaged in stock trading. Fifty years ago, he located at Buffalo, where he established stock yards. He is the senior member of the firm, Burrius, Hanes & Company; and is a director in the Union Stock Yards Bank of Buffalo. The last visit of Mr. Burrius to Kentucky was in 1902. It is a matter of intense interest to hear him tell of the early days in his Old Kentucky Home.

Mr. Burrius was initiated into Winchester Lodge, No. 20, F. A. M. the fourth Monday in March, 1851. So far as known, Mr. Burrius is the oldest Mason in the world.

TWO HOLD-UPS IN THE COUNTY OF LAUREL

Armed Desperadoes Are Abroad in the Mountains—Fire at Physician.

LONDON, Ky., Nov. 17.—Two sensational hold-ups have occurred in London in the last three days. Saturday evening, shortly after night-fall, Dr. A. C. Foster, one of the most prominent physicians in the county, was stopped in the road as he was returning from a professional call. Just as the stranger attempted to catch the horse by the reins the doctor pulled his animal aside and drove quickly forward. The stranger drew a revolver and fired twice as the buggy passed him, but both bullets missed the mark.

A short time after Dr. Foster arrived in town and told his story a pistol shot was heard in a dark street near the center of the town. A few minutes later a young man living near the Fair Grounds was arrested for entering a church near the place where the last shooting occurred and raising a disturbance. A revolver was found upon him having three chambers which had been emptied. When taken before Police Judge Young he declared that he had fired the shots early in the afternoon, but was given a fine and a jail sentence.

On the day before an unusual hold-up occurred in the suburbs of London. Two strange men suddenly appeared at the kitchen door of Walter Jonas and ordered Mrs. Jonas to prepare supper for them. Being alone and greatly frightened, she did so, while they coolly waited in her kitchen. After eating the meal, the two strangers ordered Mrs. Jonas to remain quiet, while they went to an alley, where they had two horses hitched, mounted and disappeared.

The Difference of a Letter.

A professor in the University of Berlin, who came to this country a year ago, was much surprised, according to a story which President Hadley contributes to the Yale Alumni Weekly, when he traveled in a sleeping car, to be asked by the porter for his berth ticket.

"My birth ticket?" he said. "I have my passport. I have my letter of credit, and I have even in my trunk my certificate of vaccination, but why the railroad should want my birth ticket I do not see."

"But," said the porter, "I must know whether you have upper or lower berth."

"Upper, of course!" said the German. "Look at my passport. Does it not say, 'Well and highborn?'"
